

Suspension

Frequently Asked Questions and Answers

Questions	Answers
Can I work as a nurse if my license is suspended?	No. You may not work in a position that requires an active nursing license during the period of time your license is suspended.
Can I work as a Medical Assistant or in some other job if my employer can find something else for me to do?	That is between you and your employer. The Board of Nursing only has jurisdiction over your nursing practice. CAUTION: Role confusion may occur if you rapidly change from a licensed role into an unlicensed one. Illegal practice of licensed nursing duties may occur inadvertently and result in additional action by the Board.
How long will my license be suspended?	The length of time that your nursing license is suspended varies based on your Order type and required stipulations. Refer to your individual Order. Average times of Suspension include: Until Conditions Met: Your license will remain suspended until you complete the required stipulations. This time period can be as brief as a few days (some people don't even miss any work days), or extend to 12 months, beyond which time the license is automatically revoked. Time-specified: The time period your license will remain suspended may vary from 2 weeks to 11 months (as specified in your Order). In addition to the time requirement, there are usually specific stipulations that must be completed prior to reinstatement. Again, failure to complete all requirements to lift the Suspension usually results in automatic revocation.
Is my license suspended right now?	No. Suspension of your nursing license requires Board action.
